RE: Speaking Invitation
The Fifteenth National Collegiate Security Conference
Georgetown University
22 October 1987

Adrian Khoo and Christopher Rossomondo, officers of the Fifteenth Annual National Collegiate Security Conference (NCSC XV), have invited you to present the keynote address on the evening of 22 October at Georgetown University. The suggested format is 20 minutes of remarks followed by 10 minutes of questions and answers. Although the topic of your speech would be at your discretion, remarks covering international relations would be preferred. Some 300 - 500 students of political science and international affairs from across the nation are expected to attend. Usually the media does not cover this event.

The NCSC delegates gather to simulate a foreign affairs crisis. The students play the roles of foreign ministers and the Security Council Ambassadors who must work together to create a consistent and plausible foreign policy in a fast-breaking diplomatic and defense problem. Last year William Colby was the keynote speaker. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and Zbigniew Brzezinski act as counselors to the NCSC.

Since you already have a good many public appearances scheduled for the end of October, I believe that you should decline this invitation. If you agree, attached is a letter for your signature.

Dear Sirs:

Thank you for your invitation to address the Fifteenth Annual National Collegiate Security Conference on October 22nd at Georgetown University. In my new position as Director of Central Intelligence, my schedule is heavily committed for October and I am unable to speak to your group. However, I commend you on the conference format of problem solving in an international crisis situation. This should be a stimulating event for your delegates.

Best wishes for a successful meeting.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ William H. Webster

Dear Director Webster,

On behalf of the Fifteenth Annual National Collegiate Security Conference (NCSC XV) sponsored by the Georgetown International Relations Association, I am honored to invite you to present the keynote address on October 22, 1987.

University students from across the nation will be participating as delegates to NCSC XV. For four days these politically and internationally oriented students will have the unique opportunity to serve as foreign ministers or United Nations ambassadors. Revolving around a crisis management core, the NCSC simulation presents realistic crises that the assembled "world leaders" must address and resolve in accordance with their national policies and goals.

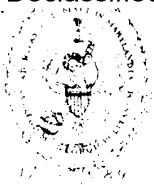

The diverse and knowledgeable audience of 300-500 active college students would be very receptive to an address discussing intelligence, defense or foreign policy issues. We understand, of course, your busy schedule but sincerely, hope that you could deliver this address at NCSC XV. Your presentation would be a valuable experience and would greatly enhance the NCSC XV program.

Thank you, again for your consideration of our conference and we would be greatly honored by your attendance at this major event at Georgetown University.

Sincerely,

Adrian Khoo
Secretary-General

Christopher M. Rossomondo
